The importance of an engine timing belt

What is the purpose of a timing belt?

The purpose of a timing belt is to ensure that the moving components of an engine revolve in perfect co-ordination.

The belt revolves at 1000s of revolutions every minute, withstanding extreme mechanical and thermal stresses, so replacing the belts and tensioners at the scheduled intervals is essential maintenance.

The Technical Skills

There is no better place to have your timing belt replaced than at a FGA Group Dealership, with its modern fully equipped workshops staffed by FGA Group trained technicians who have the required expertise and specialist tools to ensure your car is maintained to the highest standards.

When is it time to replace the timing belt?

Check out when your timing belt is due to be changed using the table shown.
